IT IS SURELY COMING.

The Question is: "Are You Prepared!"

An epidemic of the grip is certain to be general hout America in a very short time. Already many cases have been observed by physicians in Notable Social Events to Take Place-New York city, as well as in other cities of the land. Dr. Cyrus Edson of the New York board of health, says that the disease will manifest its presence generally in the very near future and that it is already here more than is generally realized.

warn people to beware of it and to use all the cautions possible. Experience has shown that elessness in habits and irregular hours render the system too weak to stand so violent a disease. Grip finds easy victims in old people and in debili- throng, and their presence gave an added child to do when the slightest symptom of grip appears, and that is to counteract it at once. If you feel tired, have pain; in the muscles and bones, have a doll headache, a bad taste in the Sheppherd, Miss Willett, Miss Snyder, Miss Sheppherd, Miss Willett, Miss Snyder, Miss

Mr. Van Alen on the Attacks of a Cer tain Newspaper.

J. J. Van Alen, who declined the appoint ment to be United States ambassador to Italy, arrived at Liverpool Wednesday on the steamship Majestic. When seen in London yesterday he said: "My movements here are uncertain. I have not decided definitely to cruise in the Mediterranean during the winter and spring. I have not even chartered a yacht for such a trip, although I have one in view. All depends upon two of my Newport neighbors, a gentleman and his wife, who intended to accompany me, but were temporarily prevented. My stay in London will be short. I shall visit relatives in Cheltenham, and return to London by Christmas. I shall go then to Paris, Pau and Cannes."

As to his declining the appointment to be ambassador in Rome, Mr. Van Alen said: "The letters from Mr. Cleveland, the State Department and myself were published, and they left nothing further to be said. Mr. Cleveland urged me to reconsider my refusal and vindicate my appointment, showing my fitness by my performance of the duties of the post. I have received endless letters from friends and strangers, democrats and republicans, commending my attitude in the matter, but regretting my refusal. The Senate was favorable to me with the exception of a few republicans. I have not received any intimation as to whom Mr. Cleveland will appoint in my stead. I dare say they will get somebody who will represent the country far better than I could, but they will represent the country far better than I could, but they will never get a man who would try harder to do so than I should. I do not care to refer personally to the New York journal whose attacks upon me were so virulent and groundless, but shall maintain toward it the attitude adopted by me at the time of its first attack—the attitude of time of its first attack—the attitude of silent, dignified contempt. This, indeed, was the only course left open for a gentleman. I am, and have been from the beginning, greatly consoled by the reflection that the newspaper in question in no wise represents American journalism. Since its unjust attacks began I have received innumerable letters, showing that it is sinking great.

Just attacks began I have received innumerable letters, showing that it is sinking greatly in public estimation. It has been hinted, whether truly or not I am unable to say, that this newspaper's attacks were prompted by disappointed ambition and by jealousy."

A TWENTY-FOUR PAGER.

The Evening Star Christmas Present to an Appreciative Public.

If one stops to think what the announce ment of a twenty-four page Star means, he will realize that seldom is a community favored with such a wealth of entertaining reading matter as will be given in tomorrow's mammoth Star.

Advantage will be taken of the four pages by which the usual Saturday edition is augmented to present a number of features chief of the department in sympathy with that will be found particularly suited to the

There are some stories that never grow old, and no one will question the statement that Dickens' Christmas Carol is the best Christmas story ever published. This beautiful work will appear in tomorrow's Star in its entirety, with a number of excellent illustrations. No one can read it without feeling the better for it, and as it will be read aloud in many Washington home circles tomorrow night, it will have the effect of loosening the purse strings of more than one Scrooge to help the countless poor who will suffer during cold weather. The Evening Star Santa Claus Club could not possibly have a better advocate than "The Christmas Carol."

Tomorrow's Star will tell, by the way, of the admirable work that is being done by the Santa Claus Club; how the badges are being distributed by thousands and how the supply can hardly equal the demand, notwithstanding the rapid work of a big New England factory. The Christmas Carol will not be the only story published tomorrow. "'Mandy's Organ" and the "Early Worm" are two pretty sketches that show distinct phases of life in the west. In one the scene is laid among the farmers of Dakota and the other has the cowboy flavor of the Texas ranches. There will be a number of articles appropriate to the Christmas season. Some will tell how to purchase, others how to make Christmas presents. The former will appeal to those with money to spend and the latter to those whose means are limited, yet who want to remember dear friends at this happy season. There will be articles on fashions, and on points in etiquette that will be unusually entertaining. In this connection the little folks will not be overlooked, and fond mothers will be told just how to make a suitable and becoming fancy dress for Bobby or costumes will look. There will be a capital article on the Foot Pads of Paris, with illustrations, which give an excellent idea of their tricks and expert work.

There will be another chaper devoted to some of the well-known artists who make Washington their home and whose studios show the steady growth of Washington as an art center.

"Study at West Point," by an army officer, with illustrations, will give a good idea of the work of embryo generals.

Amos Cummings and F. G. Carpenter will contribute interesting, breezy articles, illustrated, on some well-known figures in Congress with striking characteristics and peculiarities.

But the list is too long to give more than a few samples of tomorrow's Star. of his nieces, the Misses Burrows.

Speaking for Hawaii. A good-sized audience heard an address from Rev. Oliver P. Emerson, the secretary of the Hawaiian board of missions, who spoke last evening in the lecture room of the Church of the Covenant. Mr. Emerson was an eye witness of the recent revolution in that island, and is a firm believer in the righteousness of the movement which re-sulted in the overthrow of the queen. He believes that the provisional government will be maintained, but thinks that it is now undergoing a terrible strain. He thought it was an ungrateful spectacle for Americans to allow their Anglo-Saxon kinsmen to stand guard for civilization under the present trying circumstances. The people were going to fight for their rights, although they felt it was wrong that they were left with-out support. It was more than a question of supremacy, it was the battleground of the civilization of the east and the west.

The annual session of the Maryland State Grange was brought to a close at the Maitby House, Baltimore, yesterday. The body denounced the policy of J. Sterling Morton, Secretary of Agriculture, as outlined by him in an address before the congress of agriculture in Chicago on October 16. The grange passed resolutions stating that, it being almost universally recognized as virtually true that the advancement of agriculture in the United States and the promotion of the material interests of farmers demand organization for mutual education, support and benefit, it is of the high est importance that the heads of the execuest importance that the heads of the execu-tive department especially dedicated to their advantage should be fully in sympathy with the farming classes, and their efforts for success, by combined action. The grange also unanimously agreed "that the present Secretary of Agriculture has shown himself not only openly, but offensively, op-posed to this first and supreme principle and to the great bodies seeking to bring the advantages of corporations to the farmers of the land."

of the land."

The offensive language language used by Secretary Morton was as follows: "The American farmer has foes to contend with. They are not merely the natural foes—not the weevil in the wheat, not the murrain in the cattle, not the cholera in the swine, nor the drouth, nor the chinch-bug. The most insidious and destructive foe to the farmer is the 'professional' farmer who as a 'professional' farmer who are 'professional' farmer wh is the 'professional' farmer, who, as a 'pro-moter' of granges and alliances, for political purposes, farms the farmer. Forbes selected 170 men, with whom he proceeded, carrying the food on the spare horses and sending the wagons with 130 men to Emshlangane. On the evening of December 3 Forbes reached the Shangani river. Capt. Wilson, with fifteen men, crossed and captured a Matabele, who informed him that the king's wagon was stuck hard by.

Wilson sent the information to Forbes who sent forward Capt. Barrow with twenty men. Barrow overtook Wilson before daylight. Upon reaching the wagon they called for somebody to come out. The natives at once began the attack. Wilson retreated 600 yards, losing four horses. Messengers who were sent to Forbes escaped with difficulty. They left Wilson fighting. Upon nearing the river they heard firing in Maj. Forbes
